

ABSTRACT

An impact absorption structure for a steering column cover for a vehicle, which is capable of minimizing injury to a driver's knee as well as driver's chest by achieving certain deformation in an impact absorption structure when a load is applied due to an impact on the steering column cover. The impact absorption structure is adapted to a bolt mounting structure in which upper and lower steering column covers are assembled using bolts.